6.0 GENERAL PROCEDURE

6.1 In situations where the manager has evidence that a member of staff has behaved in a manner outside the policies and procedures of the service or professional codes of conduct or practice that apply to them, the matter should be referred to their professional regulator or professional body, as appropriate.

7.0 REPORTING BAD PRACTICE

7.1 The manager should ensure that staff are aware of their rights under the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998 and are therefore able to report any concerns without worrying about consequences. The manager assures staff that they report any suspicions without fear that they will suffer as a result.

7.2 The service should operate a “blame-free” culture in order to learn from complaints and adverse incidents.

7.3 In any case where bad practice has been alleged, the manager should ensure that the local authority safeguarding procedures and protocols relating to investigating bad practice are followed before carrying out a thorough investigation. In order to protect all parties, the manager should ensure strict adherence to the Confidentiality and Access to Records Procedure, MA-15.

7.4 Staff should be aware that where they observe bad practice, whether on a single occasion or more often, they should report these matters to the manager of the service.

7.5 The manager should ensure that all staff have access to the name, address and telephone number of the Care Quality Commission in case a member of staff does not feel able to report bad practice to the manager.

7.6 Contact details of local Social Services Offices, Health Authority Offices and details of the Care Quality Commission should be displayed in the service.

7.7 The manager should ensure that all reports of bad practice are treated as serious matters and should be dealt with promptly and effectively.

7.8 The manager should ensure that a system exists which would provide anonymity for any person who reports bad practice.

7.9 Should the manager be aware of any form of victimisation or reprisal against a complainant, they should immediately begin to take disciplinary action against the perpetrators on the grounds of gross misconduct.
